Germany Jealous of Russia.

METHODS OF TURKS.

How They Propose to Force Another Uprising of Christians.

Special Armenian Correspondence of the Associated Press .- (Copyright.) DJULFA, Russia, May 7.-The Turkish government, it is claimed, has just taken the preliminary steps in what may result in a massacre of Nestorian Christians in west of Gawar, which may be described as lying about midway between Nosul and Lake Van, about fifty miles west of the Persian frontier. The orders, it is stated, are that no food supplies of any kind shall a means of compelling the independent tribes to submit to the Trukish government. and is regarded as the first serious attempt that the Turks have made to exort taxes from the independent tribes. From the earliest times in the history of the Ottoman empire these tribes have been independent of Turkish rule. They have paid no taxes, and they have acknowledged no allegiance to the Turkish government. The present course of the government is taken, in some Sultan has plenty of opportunity for knowing that the independent Nestorians are too poor to pay taxes, and that many of starved because they will not share with the Sultan of Turkey the scraps of bread, the refuse bits of meat and the odds and ends which they obtain by begging. Their homes are in a wild and bleak wilderness of mountain peaks, and narrow, rocky valleys where nothing will grow except a tuft of broom corn here and there in the crevices few stalks of millet in a casual square yard or so of soil in the valleys. It is not difficult to forecast the probable result of the deavor to obtain food from Gawar and other outside districts, and there will fights with the Turkish troops, the villages will possibly be attacked, some of the wretched people will be killed, and no man can prophesy where the persecution I have just returned from a rapid journey to the Kurdish mountains for the purpose of investigating the report that fourteen villages had been attacked and devastated by a band of Kurds last week. The original fumor had it that the Kurds had massacred many Christians and had carried off women girls to the mountains. After riding and night to reach the scene of the raid I at length arrived at the Merguiver valley, which lies, like the bottom of a boat, underneath huge mountains, covered from base to summit with almost unbroken expanses of snow. It was in this valley that the raid took place. I found that a of Kurds from the mountains had indeed raided fourteen villages in this valley. the raid was directed against other Kurds and not against Christians. There were a few Nestorian Christfans living in the valley, but they were not molested in any way. As this was not a race hind his ear and fired a ball into his own religious raid it will probably have little interest outside of the Merguiver valley. I regret to say that Mr. Paton, of the British consulate-general in Tebriz, Persia. is very much in disfavor with the gentlemen who are conducting the Armenian revolutionary movements. In spite of the fact that Mr. Paton has been collecting eviience of the Sassoon and Moosh massacres for the use of the British government, the Armenians looks upon him as a spy. If the President did go away it is only for a short time, as he has an engagement to-morrow night and one on Tuesday night with the Atlantic Exposition

REV. DR. J. P. D. JOHN ON THE VISION OF THE INVISIBLE.

Notable Baccalaurente Delivered by the President of DePauw University

Before Students and Alumni.

REASON, SENSE AND FAITH

VALUE OF THE LATTER TO MANKIND IN ALL RELATIONS OF LIFE.

Annual Baccalourentes of President J. J. Mills at Earlham and President Stott at Franklin.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Ind., June 9 .- Baccalaureate Sunday at DePauw University was very warm, but the large attendance of visitors and citizens at the day's services showed the intense interest manifested here in the fifty-sixth annual commencement. At 9 o'clock this morning occurred what, to many of the older visitors, is the most enjoyable public exercise of the daythe university class meeting. It is here the genuine religious feeling of the stanch old Methodists finds expression and the reunion and experience meeting is always full of

At 10:30 o'clock an audience assembled that completely packed Meharry Hall, first floor, gallaries, amen corners and platform. On the platform, which was decorated with flowers, were the faculty, trustees and visitors from the conferences, prominent citizens and distinguished alumni. No commencement Sunday at DePauw is considered complete without ing prayer by the senior bishop of the M E. Gobin, of the Theological School, read the Scripture lesson, selections from the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, Chorus rendered Handel's Chorus, "Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates." Dr. John's Sermon.

Then came the baccalaureate sermon by taking his text from Hebrews xi, 27, "He endureth as seeing Him who is invisible."

evening when the sky is both smiling and black clouds of the east. It is a vision of beauty worth going around the world to see. You can close your eyes by day or night and see a vision more beautiful than the rainbow in the eastern sky. It is the truth on which the rainbow hangs, eternal as the very artist who passed his from the heights toward the earth. It begins on a path of truth-God's truth, valid before the world was and valid after the world shall have ceased to tinues through its fall with God's thought in it. A ray of light, another thought of God, strikes athwart the drop in midair; it enters invisible: it is torn into a million of threads of matchless hues, and before the drop has reached the earth it has served to mirror the eternal truth of God uron the angry sky. It is more beautiful to the soul than a rainbow can be, than to the eye that it actually is. beautiful than the truth that makes roses possible. More unts the crest and descends the sinus of every wave as it bears the song to your delighted ears. Open your eyes, unsto your ears, put forth your hands, and le world of sense, full of charms and freighted with delights. Close your full of lovelier charms and freighted with the rainbow. The sight of truth with the eye of imagination is more begutiful than of memory is more beautiful than song But there are visions vet more beautiful You can open the eyes of your intellect and see the truth of God, a sight unmatched by springs of water or hillsides of green wers or trees or mountain peaks or sea or sky; a vision worth all the cost human life to see, with its pains, its toils, its tears, its sacrifices, its deaths; for the sight of truth is a glimpse of destiny. But you can close the eyes of your intellect and see a vision (shall I say it?) more beautiful than truth itself-a picture more beautiful than memory ever painted, or reason ever gazed upon, or imagination ever glimpsed. It is a vision of the invisible, is a sight of the Thinker. It is a gimip e of God. More beautiful than the picture is the thought of the artist; more beautiful than his thought is the invisible essence rainbow, the his and the picture are the mirror? With the eye of reason. How do we see the invisible essence which is behind all rainbows and lilies and pictures, and still behind the truth on which they all rest? That is a vision seen without eyes by the direct and immediate gaze of faith. Reason sees beyond sense. Faith sees beyond both sense and reason. If the sight of reason is real as that of sense. so is the vision of faith as real as that of reason, and the invisible itself as real as the visible. The vision of sense is medlate, through a physical organ and by a process of steps. The vision of reason is also mediate, through a process of steps, but without the organ of sense. faith vision rect. immediate. It needs no organ of sense, no process of steps. It sweeps down the truth from above; it does not need, like reason, to climb to it from below. It reaches its destination by a straight line; it does not need, like reason, to tack right and left to catch the favoring gale. There is no veil between faith and the face of God. The eagle looks undaunted at the sun; reason looks undaunted at the uncreated splendors of truth; faith looks undaunted at the source of truth-the truth behind the truth. It touches its face against the essences that think and gazes unhurt into the very face of God. Sense grasps the truth of sense. Reason does the same, but stops not there; it grasps the invisible truth of reason. Faith does all this, and more: it grasps the truth of truth. Sense is limited to the world matter; reason is limited to the world of thought; faith is universal and unlimited in its scope, Like reason, it begins with sense, but it does not end there. It continues through reason, but it stops not with ies boundaries. For long after the eye of sense closes at the coming of truth and long after the eye of reason closes to the oncoming glory of the invisible, faith is gazing without eyes upon the matchless

FAITH WITHOUT EYES. Faith sees, but it sees without eyes. Yea, that is faith; seeing without eyes, hearing without ears, and touching without fingers. It is the direct and unveiled gaze of the soul on truth and on the essence behind the truth. Faith is seeing the invisible, hearing the inaudible and touching the intangible. It is the immediate contact of the soul with God, with all assences, and with all truth. Faith is divine sight and divine insight. It is an instinct of the soul moved and moving by the im-
